Ellen Kay Trimberger

JUL 15, 1940 - OCT 23, 2025

We are deeply saddened to report the death of our beloved family member, friend, and colleague, Ellen Kay Trimberger, of Berkeley, CA. Kay died peacefully on October 23rd, 2025, at the age of 85, surrounded by friends and family members.

Kay was born in Lincoln, Nebraska, on July 15th, 1940 and grew up in Ithaca, New York. Kay's mother, a multi-talented, artistic homemaker and her father, a prominent professor in the Cornell University College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, provided the family with the unique opportunity to live in the Philippines for a year when Kay was a teenager. This early immersion in another culture, just a few years after the devastation of World War II, had a deep impact on Kay's thought and future education.

She received her PhD in sociology at the University of Chicago. Kay taught at a number of universities including Columbia University, Barnard College, Queens College City University of New York, UC Berkeley, UC Santa Barbara, and San Jose State University. From 1981 - 2000 she was the Coordinator of the Department of Women's and Gender Studies at Sonoma State University. Kay was honored as Professor Emerita at Sonoma State University and served as an affiliated scholar at the Institute for the Study of Social Issues at UC Berkeley.

Dr. Trimberger authored many important articles and two influential books, The New Single Woman (2006), and Creole Son: An Adoptive Mother Untangles Nature & Nurture (2020). Kay also wrote about adoption in her blog, Adoption Diaries, for Psychology Today.

Beyond her academic life, Kay loved to travel, especially hiking in the Sierras and camping. "She got me to go places I never would have gone" was a thought shared by many of her friends. Kay loved the outdoors, beautiful scenery, and exploring new cities and countries. Kay was fiercely independent and truly loved her life in Berkeley, CA. She placed a high value on friendship and was known for her extraordinary generosity to friends and colleagues, going to great lengths to
